The landmark decision of Pickford & Pickford [2024] FedCFamC1A 249 reshaped the legal landscape of coercive control, with three distinct judicial approaches from McClelland DCJ; Aldridge and Carew JJ; and Austin and Williams JJ.

Through practical discussion and case analysis, we will consider:

- What constitutes family violence that coerces or controls
- How context transforms conduct into coercion
- When isolated acts without a clear pattern can still amount to coercive or controlling behaviour
- What sort of evidence should you be looking for, and how to put that forward to the court
- How to best support your clients through the process, and understand what is helpful for the court to know, and what is not

Join us to deepen your understanding of this evolving area of law and learn how to identify, evidence and argue coercive control in practice.

Presented by Rose Cocchiaro, Founder, Executive Director and Ella Cameron, Senior Solicitor, Resolve Divorce

AND BALANCING RISK

The employment law landscape is undergoing rapid transformation, marked by significant rulings, rising litigation, and looming regulatory reforms. Recent decisions in employment law have been described by some as dramatically shifting the goal posts, while others view them as restoring fairness to a system under strain with data showing significant increases in unfair dismissal and general protections claims before the Fair Work Commission. With a growing tide of disputes, escalating risks around wage compliance, the limits of contractual set-off provisions and impending restrictions on non-compete clauses the challenges for employers and advisers are clear.

This session will offer clarity for practitioners navigating an evolving legal landscape and address:

- The new landscape: examining key decisions that are reshaping the employment law framework
- Analyse emerging trends: in FWC claims, pay compliance disputes, and restraint of trade reforms.
- Practical takeaways: strategies for practitioners to adapt and advise effectively in light of these developments

MERGER MAKEOVER: A NEW MANDATORY AND SUSPENSORY REGIME

In late 2024, the Commonwealth Government passed significant reforms to Australia's merger control regime. The reforms are extensive and mark the most significant change to Australia's merger laws in 50 years. The core feature of the reforms is the replacement of the existing voluntary and informal regime with a mandatory and suspensory merger control regime. From 1 January 2026, it will be compulsory for businesses to notify the ACCC of acquisitions that meet specific monetary thresholds before the notified acquisition is put into effect. Businesses who intend to make acquisitions in 2026 should be aware of the new regime to ensure compliance (and to avoid significant penalties)

Key topics include:

- How the new mandatory ACCC merger clearance regime compares to the old regime
- Acquisitions captured by the Reforms
- New notification thresholds;
- New ACCC review timelines;
- Changes to the 'substantial lessening of competition' test (SLC test);
- Exemptions and potential waivers;
- Penalties for non-compliance; and
- Practical guidance for legal advisers navigating the transition.

UNDERSTANDING FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR IN-HOUSE COUNSEL

FRIDAY, 20 FEBRUARY 2026
8.30AM TO 10.30AM

$305
WEB262N21

Financial literacy is an essential skill for today's in-house lawyers. This practical and engaging workshop unpacks the fundamentals of accounting and financial reporting, giving legal professionals the tools to interpret financial statements with confidence. Through clear explanations and real-world examples and led by experienced and expert forensic accountants you will explore how different accounting methods affect reported results, how to identify red flags and gaps in information and how to ensure that financial data informs your sound legal and commercial decision-making.

For in-house lawyers, financial literacy is no longer optional — it's essential.

Financial statements underpin almost every aspect of corporate decision-making, from assessing commercial risk and negotiating contracts to advising on director duties, solvency, and compliance. Yet many lawyers only scratch the surface of what these documents reveal.

Whilst financial statements may seem simple on first glance, there is far greater detail beyond the key pages we immediately turn to. In this interactive and practical workshop, Carissa and Shannon will demystify the numbers and explain how to interpret financial information with confidence.

Using real-world examples, they'll show how financial statements can both illuminate and obscure the true performance and position of a business — and how in-house counsel can use this understanding to provide sharper, more commercially attuned advice.

- What are the fundamental basics of accounting?
- What are "debits" and "credits"?
- How financial statements are prepared and the key documents behind them
- Interpreting profit & loss statements and balance sheets, and shortfalls in information you may encounter
- How selecting differing accounting methods will impact reported financial performance and position

MEET YOUR PRESENTERS:

Carissa Lacey is a Director at Vincents with over 13 years' experience specialising in forensic accounting, business valuations, and financial analysis for economic loss assessments and class actions. Carissa is a Chartered Accountant and an accredited Business Valuation Specialist. Carrisa undertook training in Collaborative Practice in 2016. Carissa frequently delivers accounting and business valuation training to various law firms to bridge the gap between accounting expertise and its practical application in legal proceedings.

ADMINISTRATIVE DECISION-MAKING – HOW TO AVOID COMMON ERRORS

All sorts of government bodies make 'administrative' decisions, or decisions in a statutory context. Decision-makers need to be aware of such a statutory context before they make these kinds of decisions. Common errors in administrative decision-making tend to come from an overreliance on policy or practice, a lack of understanding of the nature of authority, and even a fear of the legislation itself. By learning to re-focus, decision-makers can gain confidence and improve the quality and lawfulness of their decision-making.

CYBER SECURITY & DATA PRIVACY IN COMMERCIAL LITIGATION PRACTICES

Legal practices regularly handle sensitive information and data. This makes them attractive targets for cyber criminals who engage in engineering, cybercrimes or seek bribes to prevent the release of confidential information. Even major firms have been the subject of cyber-attacks targeting operations and data.

- From small scale "phishing" to handling major data breaches, you need to keep up with developments in this rapidly changing area in order to manage the risk that it presents. That risk includes the potential for legal liability to those whose private information they hold such as customers, as well as to shareholders and others who can be affected by an attack on their organisation.
- Examine the potential liability that your law firm may be exposed to in the aftermath of an attack as well as potential responses to a major data breach focusing on the risks which arise in the conduct of an ordinary commercial litigation matter
